For Workplace Injury Insurance

User guide

This document organizes rates alphabetically by industry and numerically by Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) code.

The rate an individual employer pays for workplace injury insurance includes an Industry Rate and may include an Experience Rating adjustment. In many cases, it also includes an Industry Safety Association levy.

The WCB's Employer Information Guide has more information about rates. Visit employerguide.wcb.ns.ca to learn more. If you have specific questions about individual employer rates, send us a secure message through my-account.ns.ca or call us toll-free at 1-800-870-3331.

Industry Rates

Employers are classified by industry using Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) codes. Published by Statistics Canada, SIC codes are a recognized standardized method of classifying employers. SIC codes with similar types of activity and cost experience are grouped into Industry Groups. Some large industry groups stand alone. Smaller industry groups get combined further into Rate Groups, based on cost experience. This is the level at which Industry Rates are set.

Experience Rating

Experience Rating adjusts industry rates based on an employer's experience. Like other forms of insurance, employers with higher claims costs pay higher premiums.

Safety Association Levy

The WCB collects levies on behalf of safety associations in several industries. Safety associations focus on improving the safety performance of the industry. For more information about how the levy is used, please contact your industry safety association.

The levy amount included in this book may vary by employer. Individual employer levy rates are based on a percentage of the industry rate +/- the employer Experience Rating. However, for employers in the fishing industry, the levy amount is a flat fee of $80, $160 or $320 based on premium size.
